

UNCG to Perform "Go, Dog. Go!"

Feb. 10 at RCC

The UNCG Theatre and the North Carolina Theatre for Young People will perform "Go, Dog. Go!" at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 10, at Randolph Community College. The event is free, open to the public, and appropriate for children and families of all ages. Based on the popular picture book by P.D. Eastman, this show is full of fanciful frolic and frivolous FUN! Big. Little. Dogs of all sizes! Red. Green. Dogs of all colors! In. Out. Dogs on roller-skates! Come see what fun awaits you in this dog loves dog world! The story was adapted for the stage by Allison Gregory and Steven Dietz and is directed by Rachel Briley. The play is one of several cultural arts events scheduled for this semester at Randolph Community College. It will be held in the auditorium of the R. Alton Cox Learning Resources Center; seating is limited to 200. Doors open at 6 p.m. The Asheboro Campus is located at 629 Industrial Park Avenue. Take the McDowell Road exit off of Highway 220 Bypass and follow the signs.

Good News

With all the negativism we read when we pick up a daily newspaper, such as threats of war, acts of violence, human cruelty and famine, isn't it time we seek out some 'good news?' The word 'gospel' means 'good news.' Just what is this good news? It is that we do not need to be separated from God due for our sinful nature. The information revealed in the gospel is quite simple: Jesus Christ died for our sins so we may have eternal life. Through his death and resurrection, we have forgiveness and new life; we are truly reborn. The good news is presented in God's word, but is also in Jesus Christ himself.

Start the New Year with a new attitude: "Live Life, Give Life."

Everyone who donates blood with the American Red Cross Randolph Service Center between January – March 31, 2009 will get a chance to win one of three pairs of plane tickets, courtesy of Delta Airlines. At the end of each month, the Red Cross will randomly select one winner within the Carolinas Region to receive the three prizes. For the location nearest you, please call (800) GIVE LIFE or visit www.redcrossblood.org "During the holidays—essentially from Thanksgiving to well beyond New Year's—doctors often have to make tough decisions about which patients receive blood first when the inventory is low," said Dr. Evelyn Lockhart, chief medical officer, American Red Cross Carolinas Blood Services Region. "The Red Cross hopes that promotions such as 'Live Life, Give Life' will motivate eligible blood donors to give blood in January to help make sure that blood is available for everyone who needs a life-saving transfusion." The reduction in blood donors during the holiday season is due to a mix of variables including flu and other winter illnesses, cancellation of donation appointments and blood drives, and the closing of high schools, colleges and many businesses. In addition, new studies indicate that the pool of eligible donors represents about 37 percent of the population with only about 8 percent of those eligible actually donating. About four million people in the United States need blood each year, and the overwhelming majority would die without it. The Carolinas Blood Services Region, one of 36 American Red Cross Blood Services regions throughout the country, provides life-saving blood to patients in 103 hospitals. About 1,600 people need to give blood each weekday to meet hospital demand. There is no substitute for blood; volunteer donors are the only source. Blood donors must be at least 17 years old, in generally good health, and weigh 110 pounds or more. It is safe to give blood every 56 days. Call 1-800-GIVE LIFE or go to www.redcrossblood.org to schedule a donation appointment or to learn more about giving blood.
